

ULTIMATE SHOWDOWN

CLAREMONT COLLEGE EDITION

BY LOREN HINTON AND XINWANG

Note to the reader:

In this piece of work, the characters were taken from well-known manga to represent stereotypical students of the Claremont Colleges. These characters were chosen by the basis of one personality trait that matches the reported stereotypical traits of each of the colleges. The characters, the series, stereotypes, and colleges represented are listed on the following page.

The characters are placed into two different worlds that resemble those of the two main genres of manga: one shonen (manga for boys) and one shojo (manga for girls). In each of these worlds, the characters are split up into teams, divided along sport teams in real life, and are asked to compete against each other in a variety of challenges. In each of these challenges, a trope of shonen or shojo manga is depicted, and the characters are asked to deal with the situation accordingly. Their performances are then judged by two official judges, who determine the winner of the match.

The style used was based on that of Azumanga Daioh, a simple four panel that is used for humor, which is one of the aims of this piece of work. Please enjoy reading!!!

Sincerely,

Loren Hinton and Xin Wang

Disclaimer: The characters are properties of their respective creators! This is a piece of fan work. Furthermore, none of the stereotypes presented in the work reflects the opinions of the authors: they are the commonly perceived stereotypes that were gathered from the students of the Claremont Colleges.
